

IV International Scientific Conference Microbiology and Immunology — the development outlook in the 21st century

Kyiv
22-23 of September
2022

Dear colleagues and friends!

With great hopes for the meeting, we inform you about the new details of the IV International Scientific Conference “Microbiology and Immunology - the development outlook in the XXI Century” which was postponed to take place on September 22-23, 2022 in Kyiv in a hybrid format.

Despite all the obstacles and dangers caused by the state of war in our country, we consider it our commitment to support the scientific community in the pursuit of the democratic development of modern science. That is the reason why we decided to hold our event at the beginning of the new academic year in Ukraine. We are waiting for your participation both in the rooms of the Taras Shevchenko National University of Kyiv and in the virtual space, which will ensure the interaction of all participants during the conference.

All abstracts submitted appropriately will be published in the E-Abstract book on the conference website. All the registration data and fees will be kept by the Organizing Committee. We continue the registration and abstract submission through the official conference website and are looking forward to your participation in a form of oral presentation, e-poster, or abstract publication.

We are also pleased to inform you that the participants are provided with an additional option to publish the conference materials as a short article in one of the best-recognized Ukrainian scientific journals «Biotechnologia Acta» (<http://biotechnology.kiev.ua>) without any additional fee. All the published articles will have DOI, which will significantly increase the citation index of the presented materials. To seize the opportunity, authors, in addition to regular registration and abstract submission on the conference website, have to provide extended materials as a short article written according to the author rules of the journal. Please, send it via Organizing Committee E-mail microbimconf2022@gmail.com. The short author rules and a sample of the article are attached. This option is available both for those participants who have already submitted the abstracts and for new participants.

We look forward to meeting you in September!

The Conference Organizing Team

In case you have any questions feel free to contact us: microbimconf2022@gmail.com. Also stay tuned on our official Homepage, Telegram Channel and Facebook account.

Important Dates:

Abstract submission deadline: August 21, 2022

Early birds abstract submission deadline: July 21, 2022

Notification of Acceptance: Within two weeks after the submission

Registration ends: September 22, 2022